JUST LIKE HER DREAM.

A Lady Assaulted While Out Riding—She Returns the Blow With a Knife.

The Providence Journal in a recent issue says: Last evening about 7 o'clock, while Mrs. Henry H. Heal was returning home from a ride, she drove through Adelaide avenue into Melrose street. She was alone in a box buggy, and just after she had turned into the latter highway, a man sprang into the street, grasped the reins and stopped the horse. He then jumped into the vehicle and struck the lady a severe blow in the face, causing her nose to bleed quite freely. It so happened that Mrs. Healey had been at Attleboro during the day, and while there had purchased a knife for use in connection with household duties. This she had forgotten to leave at home, and, in discovering it in her pocket while driving, had laid it on the cushion seat by her side. On receiving the blow from the ruffian the thought of the knife flashed across her mind, and at once grasping it she struck at him with such force as she was able to command. He immediately let go his hold upon the carriage and fell back with the exclamation, "My God, I am cut!" The lady drove on, and after passing some distance from the spot where she had been assaulted, pulled in the horse and looked about for some one to assist her, but nobody happening to be on the street at the time, continued on her way home. She did not see her assailant after she struck at him, and all that she can remember concerning his appearance is that he was a large man with a full beard, and she thinks he were a cap. The blow which he gave her did not cause any serious injury, but the shock to her nervous system was very apparent for some hours afterward. The effect of the villian in assaulting her is entirely a matter of conjecture. She happened to have on a pair of diamond ear-rings, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that the possession of them might have been his object. Mrs. Healey's husband usually accompanies her on her drives, but yesterday he happened to be away from home.

A singular coincidence is related in connection with the assault, which we vouch for as true. The night dreamed that she was being pounded by a large man with a full beard, while her valiant appeared to be. This dream she related at the breakfast table yesterday morning. Moreover, yesterday appears to have been a singularly eventful day for the lady, for in numerous reminding ones forcibly of the old saw that "misfortunes never come singly." In the morning, with a company of lady friends, she took the 10:30 Boston train, the party being bound for the Attleboro fair, but when the train had reached the Carlisle works the locomotive became in some way disabled, causing considerable delay. The consequence was that the train failed to connect with the train at the junction, and Mrs. Healey and her friends had to take a morning wagon for the fair grounds. Then occurred another accident.

When still at a considerable distance from the track the axle tree of the wagon broke and the party again were left in the road. Another team picked them up, and, somewhat to their astonishment, perhaps, they all, including Mrs. Healy, at last reached their destination in safety.

Miss Jennie Beauchamp was the Texas Vice president of the women's foreign convention at Omaha. Now do somebody tell us who Miss Jennie Beauchamp is, and where she domiciles.—Texas Statesman.

Mrs. Jennie Beauchamp is the wife of the Rev. Beauchamp, who has charge of the Gainesville, Tex., Methodist church. She used to live in the city of Denton. She is a woman of strong mind, a fluent writer, a lady of quick conception and easy delivery.

Waco.

Waco, October 12.—A farmer named Josh Ingram, living near the city, who was a candidate for constable at the recent primary elections, attempted suicide to-day. He went home crazy with drink, and after a quarrel with his wife, took a pistol out. She had rushed a neighbor's house. He put the pistol to his head and fired, the ball going through the top of the skull, after which he pursued his wife about 200 yards before falling, and then got up and walked back to the house. He will die.

The first freight train over the Texas & St. Louis narrow gauge will leave here for Gatesville on Saturday, and a regular passenger train will be put on next week.

The residence of Mrs. M. B. Goldman burned last night. Nothing saved; fully insured.

The Monitor now has the latest improved Gordon job press, and we are now enabled to compete with Dallas and Galveston in prices.

From Galt Branch.

SALT BRANCH, Denton Co., Texas, October, 11 '82.

ED. MONITOR:

I have always tried to maintain strict neutrality as regards the present political turmoil that is engendering so much dissatisfaction among our people; relying upon past experience, and the history of these early principles of right and justice as successively taught and practiced by those eminent statesmen who framed the grand old ship of liberty and after launching her upon turbulent waters among jealous nations; they have steered her to a haven of prosperity surpassed by none, and equaled by but few.

But sir, while regarding your most valuable paper I have noticed two communications, with intermediate answers, claiming to advocate those early principles underlying soundest democracy.

In commencing his second tirade of abuse, he says that the Republicans and sore head Democrats would vote the National Greenback Labor ticket to beat the present Democratic and Republican parties.

This I will admit. And if he had continued and said that all unbiased persons, without regard to their former party alliance, would stand by the new party in supporting those time honored principles of equal sovereignty and against the oppression as practiced by the two old parties, this I would have admitted also. That the modern history of the present political parties has been of repeated corruption will not be denied by all well informed and unbiased persons; and parties invariably the same objectionces a design to reduce the laboring classes to absolute want. To prove this let facts be submitted.

They have refused to pass laws the most wholesome and necessary for the good of their people and of our nation; and by giving their assent to laws for the suppression of strikes by sending negro mercenaries to continue the work of desolation and death already being witnessed by starvation; thereby forcing those into compliance and subjecting them to the unrelenting will of the moneyed tyrants.

They have given their consent to the building up of one the most formidable banking monopolies the world has ever contained, thereby instituting Whig and Knownothingism in the place of old Republican and Democratic theories as held by Jefferson, Jackson, Tyler, Calhoun, Benton, Theodore Stevens, and other leading lights of both parties and taking the power of issuing our currency from the government —a right laid down in section eighth of Article fourth of the Constitution—and placing it in the hands of unscrupulous individuals.

They have given their assent to the refunding of the public debt theory, forging the chains of slavery on our children and their posterity, and, at the same time hoarding up vast millions in the government vaults, which if judiciously applied would pay every dollar of the debt in the short space of two years.

They have placed laws bequeathing the homes of unborn millions to Railroads and other gigantic monopolies, thereby endowing one of the grandest land aristocracies in the world and bringing the land revolution of our country that caused proud Greece to sink into oblivion and is now causing the Shamrock of old Ireland to be drenched in blood.

In every passage of these oppressive measures we have petitioned congress for redress in the most humble terms, and our repealed petitions have only been answered by continued oppression.

And to-day the Democratic party has placed as her standard bearer for governor of our own state, a man whose policy has been one of repeated changes and he is now continuing his unwarrantable course. He is now advocating the unconstitutional act of Sectionalism in public schools for the avowed purpose of controlling the Catholic vote; and I think if the Irish and Germans of Texas will allow themselves to pause and look back when England crossed the Irish sea, subdued their native country, forced upon them the Episcopal sectarian schools and the rights that were maintained by Emmet were sank into oblivion; and they were forced to cast aside those early principles as taught them by their worthy priesthood; and after this I think they will be far from being decoyed into such measures.

Now Mr. Monitor let me say in the language of an old bard:

That toiling hands alone are builders
Of a nation's wealth and fame,
That manhood is unanimous,
And all men equal on its scene.
By the sweat of others forehead.
Living only to replete,
While the poor unpaid outraged freedom
Finds no voice.
Yield and submit his eternal
Born with loveliness and light;
Secret wrongs will never prosper
While there is a starry night
God whose world heard voice is singing
Boundless love to you and me,
Make expression with its tides
'Neath pebbles in the sea.

Yours,
BRUTUS.

Pa, said the Rev. Mulkitile's son, Samson was a strong man, wasn't he?

Yes, Samson was the strongest man that ever lived.

Tell me about him.

It was intended that Samson should be the strongest man, and before he was born—

The bewildered expression on the child's face arrested the minister in his narration.

Before he was born? asked the boy.

Yes; before—that is before he was found in a hollow stump—

Just like sister?

Yes; just before he was found an angel appeared and foretold of this strength, saying that no razor must touch his head.

Was the angel afraid that the razor would cut him?

No; the angel meant that his strength lay in his hair, and that his hair must not be cut off.

If I let my hair grow long, can I lift more than I can now?

I don't know about that.

Are women stronger than men?

No.

But they've got longer hair.

Yes; they have longer hair.

If a woman couldn't whip you, could she?

I don't know.

But why don't you know? I'd know if I was as old as you. How many men was it that Samson killed?

One thousand.

He was bad, wasn't he?

No.

But when a man kills anybody he's bad.

The Lord was with Samson.

But the Lord says you mustn't kill anybody. Did Samson go to heaven?

I suppose so.

But you won't fool around him, will you? If he ever hit you he'd break your wings, wouldn't he?

Go to your mother. The next time you attempt to question me about the Bible I shall whip you.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Texas & St. Louis Narrow Gauge Road.

Captain W. W. Kingdom, who is connected with the Texas & St. Louis narrow gauge railroad, arrived in the city yesterday fresh from the front, where the construction of the road is being pushed with all possible vigor. He says that the construction of the line has been retarded very much by the heavy rains that fell during the month of September. Despite the unfavorable weather, however, the graders have made satisfactory headway, and the road will be finished, within the next forty days, which will give the narrow gauge a direct line connection to St. Louis and Chicago. After the graders have got through the road as rapidly as possible from Mount Pleasant to Dallas; and the trains will be running over the line by the first or middle of January. Major Stephens, who has proven so efficient, has been given full control and charge of the line from Clarendon, Arkansas, to Gatesville, the present terminus, some forty miles south west from Waco, and if he continues to rise it will not be very long before he will be general manager, which he is virtually now. Captain Kingdom says that while the work has been pushed it has nevertheless been well done, and for rapidity and thoroughness beats that of any other line ever built in this state. The directory of the road meets next Tuesday at Pine Bluff, Arkansas, when the affairs of the road will be fully discussed. The road has in the way of rolling stock eight complete passenger trains, as many as twenty passenger locomotives, besides a large number of freight cars and engines to correspond. He is here on the lookout for more men, as it is the determination of the management of the road to complete the remaining gaps at as early a day as possible.—Dallas Herald

The Growing Danger.

"Great corporations and consolidated monopolies are fast seizing the avenues of power that lead to the control of the Government. It is an open secret that they rule States through procured Legislatures and corrupt courts, that they are strong in Congress, and that they are unscrupulous in the use of the means to conquer prejudices and acquire influence. This condition of things is truly alarming, for, unless it be changed quickly and thoroughly, free institutions are doomed to be subverted by an oligarchy resting upon a basis of money and of corporate power."—David Davis, Senator and Acting Vice President of the U. S., and formerly Judge of the U. S. Supreme Court.

"The Anti-Monopoly League calls public attention to a secret but powerful and controlling political force which is found in all parties and all factions. While working within the parties it is absolutely non-partisan. Its allegiance is transferred from one party to another as its interests dictate, and it works largely through individuals who are hired to betray party interests. It is the power of corporate monopoly, and it has gone on unchecked until it now assumes to control the State itself. It does its work secretly and by intimidation. The Anti-Monopolist recognoise the rights of capital as well as of labor. We appreciate the benefits which corporate organization has [illegible] to society, and we maintain the rights of corporations as to enforce observance of their duties, but the time has come when the people must organize and work to counteract the malign influences which have become a potent element in all political parties, oblige these parties to live up to their professions, and restrain the power for evil wielded by a few unscrupulous men who have obtained control of the great forces of the country, and who in their use recognise no principles of action but personal and corporate aggrandizement. An intelligent people with an incorrupted ballot can perhaps meet all present emergencies, but this will not long be the case if by corrupt legal devices the vast wealth annually created by labor is headed over to the privil-ged few, while the laboring masses become poorer and more dependent."—Address of the New York Anti-Monopoly League.

We Need Facts, Not Theories in Tariff Discussions.

A comparative statement of the present value of the sheep interest of Texas and the value of sheep, wool and lambs if the tariff were taken off of wool, would make any conservative man to think well before he rushed headlong into the arms of English free trade sophistries. Whereas in the year seven millions of sheep were in Texas, valued, $30,000,000. Our wool product one was $8,000,000 pounds of raw wool, worth $8,000,000 annually. One dollar per acre added to the value of 70,000,000 acres of land occupied by sheep, and valuable except for that use, is equal to $30,000,000, foots up the neat little fortune to Texas of $73,000,000. Add to this many other contingent sources of revenue accruing to the wool productions of the state, but the three principal items alone are enough to demonstrate the folly of free trade.

Our sheep interest is worth to-day $73,000,000. Will it exist in Texas if free trade principles are carried out in the United States? With free trade we would make the figures of the value of the sheep interests as follows:

7,000,000 sheep worth $1 per head - $ 7,000,000
Annual wool production 35,000,-
000 lbs. at 7½ cts. per lb. The wool will be worth at - - - - - - - - - - - -	2,625,000
Total value of sheep and wool	9,625,000
Total loss in value on sheep and wool - - - - - - - - - - - -	54,375,000
Loss in value of land - - - - - - - - - - - -	70,000,000
Total loss to the state - - - - - - - - - - - -	$125,000,000

As large as these figures are, they do not cover the loss to the state. Her interest manufactories would be sold under the hammer, her banks would collapse and her sheep owners leave the state. Such a move as is now being made by the commissaries of five trade, would ruin this country and bankrupt a people who are to-day doing more to develop the resources of the country than any element in the state. Where there is peace and plenty, pain and wild wastes would be found by future generations.
